

PRESENTATION OF RACCE PROJECT IN UNESCO, PARIS 22 February 2012

This last 21 and 22 February, UNESCO and IUGS have celebrated the 40 anniversary of the International Geosciences Programme (IGCP) at UNESCO headquarters in Paris with talks, debates, round tables and event about the relevance and future of Earth Science for Society.

The RACCE programme was presented by Guy Martini, Director of the National Natural Geological Reserve of Haute Provence during the Poster presentation and during the closing ceremony.

The RACCE programme has generated a great interest inside the 150 International delegations participating in the event.

RACCE close to the Tour Eiffel, UNESCO Headquarters